

Sunday Dec, 11th
12:30pm
Central Park Children's Gate
at East 64th St & 5th Ave

On Sunday December 11th, kids from all over New York will be marching and speaking out for the values, ideals and rights that unite us all—kindness, fairness, and equality. Kids will be able to speak up about their feelings, their fears, and their hopes for the future.

We encourage homemade signs and welcome messages that speak up for kindness or speak out against hate, that nurture respect and love for one another no matter our differences or similarities.

This gathering is for all kids, and their families, caregivers and friends. The march will begin at the Central Park Children's Gate at East 64th St. and Fifth Avenue at 12:30pm. We will march together to the Bandshell in Central Park, with a speak out starting at 1pm.

Please join us! Share this message with your school, family members, friends, neighbors, faith communities, community centers, and colleagues.

March begins at 12:30pm
Central Park Children's Gate,
East 64th @ Fifth Avenue

Speak Out begins at 1:00pm
Central Park Bandshell,
center of park south of 72nd St.

About the Organizers...

We are loosely organized group of parents with a common purpose: involving our children in speaking up for kindness, equity and justice. If you would like more information about us, please email the group at: kidsmarch2016@gmail.com.
